NOTIFICATION OF DOCKET ENTRY

This docket entry was made by the Clerk on Monday, January 23, 2023:

MINUTE entry before the Honorable Franklin U. Valderrama: Having reviewed Plaintiff's renewed emergency ex parte motion for temporary restraining order, and its accompanying declaration from counsel stating that notice to Defendant regarding the motion would cause irreparable harm, the Court grants the motion [9], but requires Plaintiff to submit a deposit to secure the temporary restraining order. See R. 11 at 45 ("In my experience, once notice of a lawsuit is received, extorters such as Defendant will stop the email communication and begin to file hundreds of copyright complaints against the Plaintiff's store... trigger[ing] Amazon's deactivation procedure leading to significant drop of Plaintiff store's 'Account Health Rating' score. Plaintiff's store and other similar sellers store will be shut down permanently with no remedy to reopen."). The Court accepts counsel's justification why notice should not be required. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b)(1). The Court further finds that Plaintiff has a strong likelihood of prevailing on its claims and would suffer irreparable harm in lost profits, reputation and goodwill without a temporary restraining order; as Plaintiff explains, it relies entirely on online sales, has already had its ASINs delisted, and is at risk of being permanently removed from the online marketplace. R. 9 at 2022. However, the Court requires that Plaintiff deposit a $10,000 security with the Court to secure the temporary restraining order. Enter Sealed Temporary Restraining Order. Provided that Plaintiff provides the security described in paragraph 3 of the temporary restraining order, the temporary restraining order shall become effective on January 25, 2023 at 6:00 p.m. and shall expire fourteen (14) days from the effective date. Subsequently, Plaintiff may file for extension of the temporary restraining order or, after notice is given to Defendant, for a preliminary injunction. Emailed notice (axc).
